A. Chancellor Austin Lane – E. Jurkowski addressed a concern in her department over staffing concerns and slowing the admission process, particularly for international students. Jurkowski asked if staffing resources are being evaluated. Chancellor Lane referred to findings from two recent audits, and that indicated non-existent business practices. The Chancellor also said it showed us under utilizing our technology and used electronic signatures as an example. J. Sherry mentioned expediting faculty hires and better intent when making offers. Chancellor Lane said they discussed a better process at the leadership retreat, and added that an internal faculty salary survey is starting. Phase II of that study will focus on how we compare to the market. Chancellor Lane said they are focused on what they can control and looking to refocus on research in revamping indirect costs. The Chancellor Lane touched on enrollment a said recruitment is still happening, as numbers look promising. They also have $3.7M in funds to help students financially. The Chancellor stated each unit in the coming month will be posting the unit effectiveness plan and their targets and measures within the strategic plan. Chancellor Lane said they continue to monitor COVID and will share the executive order once released.

B. Provost Meera Komarraju – After receiving enrollment data, J. Sramek asked for clarification on low retention numbers. Provost Komarraju looks for an increase over the next 6 weeks from previous experience. The Provost said pass/no pass could be a contributing factor due to student suspensions during the pandemic, along with dropping school for employment. L. DiLalla asked if pass/no pass is being analyzed to determine if it had a positive or negative outcome. Provost Komarraju said there is correlation between the number of students that took advantage of pass/no pass to retention data. The Provost added that instructors have shared students not being as prepared so, extra tutoring is available. The Provost added that there are students wanting to enroll but do not meet the SAP requirement for financial aid. M. Eichholz asked if we are comparing ourselves to other universities, and if the economy and job availability contribute to the decline in graduate enrollment and retention. Provost Komarraju shared early the national average and said in previous years SIUC has been ahead but is trending with the average this year. She added that gradate applications and admissions are up but registrations are down. The Provost said this could also be due to a reduction in faculty. J. Sramek addressed staffing and resource issues in the graduate office, as an example. Provost Komarraju said staffing has increased and they are working on a long-term pipeline. J. Sherry asked if lowering SIUC’s GPA requirement is a variable in retention being down. The Provost acknowledged that selective universities do have higher retention numbers. She also stated that they are collecting data to see what students they’re losing. F. Chowdhury asked about the decline in the GA budget and the decline in GA’s per unit. Provost Komarraju stated the GA budget has been protected and that the unit makes the decision for the percentage of assistantship.

VII. Special Guest Associate Chancellor Wendell Williams on No-Show Compliance and Impact

W. Williams stated the Department of Education will review an institution to make sure all guidelines are being followed in distributing Title IV funds. Williams said an issue found that effects faculty, was no shows. No shows have been reported by SIUC at the end of the semester when faculty submit grades, but this needs to be reported by the census date. A process will be in place after the tenth day to become aware of those students who never showed up and those funds will be returned within 30 days. Effective this Friday, we will submit a grade for all students in all sections at the beginning of term. Using the midterm faculty grade roster is the way you will do this. Faculty will be notified with dates and times this is to be completed. L. DiLalla asked for clarification on taking attendance and if 100% of faculty will be required to do this report. W. Williams shared his screen to show how to make the submission. Williams provided an example of passing around a sign in sheet to record participation during the first ten days and gave an example for online classes. M. Eichholz asked about best management practices from other universities and suggested providing examples to faculty when communicating this information, along with listing why reporting this information is required and its importance. Provost Komarraju commented that students may be identified in smaller classes compared to larger ones, and the importance of attending classes will be communicated to students. The Provost said they will have some mechanism in place to catch those students that miss the first two weeks of class but attend on the third week, and reminded those teaching 8-week courses that this will happen during week one. W. Williams stated that students can be added back using a course request form (CRF). J. Srámek asked if there is a system in place to safeguard for high error rates due to low staffing issues. Williams said after they receive the no show report, they will send it to academic advisors and retention and recruitment coordinators for verification.
